Enda Walsh : bedbound (NHB Modern Plays) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised bedbound (NHB Modern Plays):

A ferocious two-hander about a father-daughter relationship gone horribly and terrifyingly wrong, from the writer of Disco Pigs. Father and daughter share a small bed. He talks frantically about his extraordinary past in furniture sales; she talks no less compulsively about anything at all, to fill the terrifying silence in her head. Edinburgh Fringe First
