R.C Sherriff : The White Carnation before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The White Carnation:

Christmas Eve, 1951. As Britain rebuilds itself after the war, John Greenwood has it all ndash; a successful business, a beautiful house and an aristocratic wife. But as he bids farewell to the guests leaving his annual Christmas party, a gust of wind slams the front door shut, starting a chain of events that makes him doubt everything he has ever known...From the writer of one of the twentieth century's most acclaimed plays, Journeys End, The White Carnation is a ghostly tale of one man's chance to do things differently. This rediscovery marks the first production since its premiere, starring Sir Ralph Richardson, in 1953 and transfers to the Jermyn Street Theatre after a critically acclaimed sell-out run at the Finborough Theatre.

About the Author R. C. Sherriff was born in 1896, and remains best known for his classic First World War masterpiece, Journeys End, recently revived for a long run in the West End. Recent revivals have suggested that Sherriff's drama remains as hard-hitting and fresh as ever. Lyn Gardner, The Guardian. His many screenplays include The Invisible Man (1933), The Four Feathers (1939), the Oscar-nominated Goodbye Mr. Chips (1939) and The Dam Busters (1955). Though Journeys End continued to define his career in the theatre, the post-Second World War period was an Indian summer for Sherriff with productions of Miss Mabel (1948), Home at Seven (1950) and The Long Sunset (1955). He died in 1975.
